The UMass Dartmouth College of Visual and Performing Arts proudly presents its 2018 Thesis Exhibition at Soprafina Gallery in the urban arts district, South of Washington (SoWa), in Boston. The opening reception is Friday, June 1 from 5.30 to 6.30 pm.

The presented work, according to Viera Levitt, exhibition curator and University Art Gallery director, is driven by compelling and engaging themes such as vulnerability, feminism, cultural differences, spatial explorations, and the disappearing life of the American farm. UMass Dartmouth graduating students use a wide range of media ranging from painting, printmaking, sculpture, ceramic to photography and design.

The exhibition catalog, designed by UMass Dartmouth Graphic Design students, will be available during the exhibition.
